

Consultants powered by Xobni find increased email efficiency

Email Overload: Crippling for Consultants

There is never enough time in the day for James McLaren, Senior Manager in Accenture's telecom practice, and his colleagues. For a consultant, time literally equals money, which means productivity is paramount for success. Books like Getting Things Done and Do It Tomorrow are practically required reading and provide detailed best practices for email management. Naturally, James was excited at the potential of applying Xobni to his business upon first discovering it on the Internet.

Xobni's Comprehensive Organization Features Boost

James was initially impressed with Xobni's lightning-fast search capabilities and the ability to work more efficiently with his Outlook environment. Previous desktop and email search products James tried were more limited in scope than Xobni. James elaborated, "I decided to move wholesale to Xobni when the 'all in one' functionality began to make a real impact on my productivity. Seeing attachments indexed alongside other profile information alone is worth the download!"

Build Improved Processes on an Enterprise Scale Using Xobni

Xobni's ability to search the entire inbox is also critical for Accenture, where sharing lessons learned minimizes repeat work and directly impacts the bottom line. Accenture's large community of technology experts and early adopters provides a perfect environment for adoption of Xobni. "Xobni spread like wildfire within the organization," said James. In fact, usage is so great that James hopes to leverage Xobni data to help him understand where information bottlenecks occur within the organization. The opportunity to analyze such data would expand Xobni's impact beyond personal productivity to directly influence how enterprises design their processes.

"I decided to move wholesale to Xobni when the 'all in one' functionality began to make a real impact on my productivity. Seeing attachments indexed alongside other profile information alone is worth the download!"

-James McLaren Senior Manager, Telecom Accenture

About Accenture:

Accenture is a global management consulting, technology services and outsourcing company.

Industry:

Management Consulting

Number of Employees:

186,000